09 — WHAT WE ARE WATCHING

Risk factors

01	Interest-rate environment	Margins remain sensitive to the pace and path of central-bank policy and the shape of the yield curve.
02	Credit quality	A weaker macroeconomic backdrop could lift provisions for credit losses above current expectations.
03	Regulatory change	Evolving capital, liquidity and consumer rules may affect the pace at which we deploy excess capital.
04	Deposit competition	Funding costs could rise faster than asset repricing if competition for deposits intensifies.
05	Technology & operational risk	Cybersecurity and third-party dependencies require continued investment to manage effectively.

10 — OUTLOOK

Disciplined growth that compounds.

We enter the next cycle from a position of strength — expanding margins, a fortress balance sheet, and capital returned with discipline.
